Introduction

The draft Constitution (Amendment) (Tobago Self-Government) Bill, 2020 and The Tobago Island Administration Bill, 2021 DO NOT accord unto Tobago equality of status with Trinidad as is purported in the explanatory notes and the preamble to proposed bills. Contrarily, the draft bills provide few mechanisms that actually grant Tobagonians that long awaited autonomy; these drafts ignore most of the provisions recommended by Tobagonians after several years of consultations and that was compiled in a 2016 draft prepared by The Forum of Political Parties. It cleverly restricts the law making the powers that will be granted to Tobago while ignoring multiple international practices in the devolution of powers as found within and outside of the Commonwealth.

After several conversations with our constituents, we can affirm that Tobagonians are resolute that there are three main elements that must be present in any legislation that will grant Tobago its autonomy:

1. Clear definition of the physical boundaries of Trinidad and Tobago as a whole, then the island of Trinidad and the island of Tobago. This must be accompanied by reasonable jurisdiction of the Tobago Island Government over Tobago's marine space and a formula for sharing royalties from exploration of resources found in Tobago's marine space.

2. Tobago must have legislative authority over all the items located in the 5th Schedule of the current Act 40 of 1996, in addition to inclusion of some other pertinent areas.

3. Tobago must ultimately be granted the right to self determination, which is the right to select for itself a government of its own design and choosing.

The draft bills as presented represents such a significant deviation from what Tobagonians sent to the national parliament, that these drafts effectively nullified all consultations that were held in Tobago leading up to 2016. These new arrangements (as not proposed by Tobagonians) would ideally require fresh and detailed rounds of consultations that has not happened or will not happen for one reason or the other.

Given all of the above, Tobago has respectfully rejected these draft bills as they fail in their intent to provide reasonable legislative autonomy for Tobago on one hand and to provide equality of status between the island of Trinidad and the island of Tobago.

Division of Powers

Clauses 8, 11 and 13, the Fourth Schedule and the Fifth Schedule, establish the division of powers between the Tobago legislature, the Executive Council of the Tobago House of Assembly on one hand and the cabinet and national parliament on the other. Here are the serious issues that require addressing or change:

1. Under 8(c) The cabinet and or national parliament can circumvent the powers of the Tobago Island Government and or Executive Council “in relation to a state of public emergency”. What constitutes a public emergency? There must be an agreed criteria for this provision. It cannot be left to the sole discretion of a cabinet without specific guidelines for triggering this provision. Generally, in jurisdictions around the world, “public emergency” powers refers to governments’ powers to respond rapidly to a public emergency by: making regulations without an act of parliament, taking actions without complying with statutory duties that it would normally have to comply with, taking actions that it would not normally be allowed to take. Those powers can be set out in new primary legislation or, sometimes, in regulations made by ministers using existing primary legislation. Emergency powers often allow the government to introduce measures that may affect fundamental rights, such as the right to liberty. These measures can only be introduced in exceptional circumstances and should be temporary in nature. The general nature of emergency powers can lead to abuses and that must be avoided. Therefore we recommend the following list of possibilities that can trigger such emergency powers be built into the legislation:

- a) Upon the expressed request or invitation from the Tobago Island Government.
- b) Natural disasters that Tobago has demonstrated an inability to manage.
- c) A disease or disorder that presents a public health emergency. This includes significant outbreaks of infectious diseases or bioterrorist attacks (which appear unlikely at the moment, but given the evolution of world politics, falls in the realm of possibility).

d) The Premier can petition the President for a declaration of major disaster or emergency.

2. The Fourth Schedule versus the Fifth Schedule

We STRONGLY recommend that the approach to the Fourth and Fifth Schedule be changed.

Instead of creating a list of areas that Tobago will have legislative control over, we should create only a “CONCURRENT LIST”. This is the list of areas that grants the national parliament control and provides for concurrence and conversations between the Tobago Island Government and the national parliament. All areas not listed on this “CONCURRENT LIST”, will automatically fall under the purview of the Tobago Island Government. This approach will prevent grey areas from developing and will allow for a clearer mandate. The areas that should be featured on this concurrent list should include: border security/national security, without limitation on having internal security quite like what exists in Borough Corporations, International Relations (with a mandate for participation from Tobago on matters directly affecting Tobago or the use of its space and resources, Foreign Exchange and Exchange Control, Financial Intelligence, National Insurance, Banking without prejudice to Tobago having its own Development Bank, National Anti-Money Laundering and Counter Financing of Terrorism, Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions Office of the Solicitor General, Registrar General , Commissions of Enquiry Constitutional Matters and Protocols of the State among others to be carefully decided upon.

It must be noted that the proposed Fourth Schedule hardly deals with serious governance issues, e.g if Tourism is the economic driver of Tobago, relegating it to simply dealing with amenities is egregiously insulting. It deals with operational matters that by enumerating some will invariably exclude others that will require treatment by the Tobago Island Government.

Why not vehicular traffic? Why must that come from Trinidad? Currently, Act 40 of 1996 vested all State Lands in the authority of the Tobago House of Assembly, why this retrogression? And what becomes of lands purchased by the Tobago House of Assembly? Note: Infrastructure, including air and sea transportation, wharves and airports and public utilities; has been totally removed from either schedules. A critical observation that is relevant here is that the 5th Schedule leaves to Trinidad policy- and law-making responsibilities for key areas that are vital to Tobago's push for economic, social and institutional development, and for which it must be able to make policy and law, such as:

- a. Education
- b. Health
- c. Tourism
- d. Sports
- e. Planning and Development

The Structure of the Tobago Legislature (Clause 18)

Chapter 11A of the Constitution is repealed and a new Chapter is substituted that spells out the general structure of the Tobago Legislature. This is a dangerous Act. This will mean that anytime there is a need for a change, then a constitutional change will have to happen and that will demand a special majority. Given our nation's history, constitutional changes are very difficult to come by. There is even a sinister move to have embedded in the constitution, provisions that will prohibit revenue generation from taxation and from borrowing for a long time.

According to Tobagonian Economist Dr. Vanus James (2021): "Self-determination and autonomy cannot mean amendments that places the governance arrangements for Tobago in the Constitution of Trinidad and Tobago – a Constitution that is not controlled by Tobago but by 39 Trinidadians. If Tobagonians ever want to upgrade their governance to facilitate their pursuit of freedom and development, they would have to go to Trinidad for permission to do so. That is the antithesis of equal status and self-determination – an expression of colonial subjugation and subordination" (The Constitution Amendment (Tobago Self-Government) Bill, 2021: Another Effort to Frustrate Tobago's Pursuit of Autonomy).

Further, Tobagonians never wanted appointed members in its governance design. The island wanted a bi-cameral system with both Houses having elected members. The notion of the 2nd Chamber was for a counterfoil for monitoring and oversight of the executive branch. It was intended to have interests independent of the parties in the primary election form this chamber. The unicameral system proposed merely mirrors what obtains at the primary election. This was always a contentious provision in terms of its formulation and method of selection. Appointments from the President does not satisfy the desire of Tobagonians for an independent system of monitoring the Executive.

Unelected members of a House of Representatives are anti-democratic and subvert the most fundamental principle of representative government – government of the people. Further, unelected members have no obligation to consult with and hear the views of the people before making decisions on their behalf, which is a cornerstone of the principle of democratic government. Indeed, they have no constituents to consult with.

While the other appointments are undemocratic, the appointments by the President are especially egregious. The President is not an elected representative of the people of Tobago and has no relevant way to determine who can best speak for the people of Tobago. The President is selected by a government over which Tobagonians have no effective control. Such a constitutional creature has no legitimate business choosing anyone to represent or govern Tobagonians.

To understand Tobago's objection to a unicameral system with appointed members, one must first understand that Tobagonians never wanted a governance system that resembles or mirrors what happens at the national parliament or even Westminster for that matter. It is why there was a conscious decision to refer to Executive Council Members as Secretaries (resembling the Executive in the United States), to never use the term "Opposition" but "Minority", to not allow the calling of an election to be the sole prerogative of a Chief Secretary but rather the House dissolves itself on its anniversary in a fixed date manner or must happen by a resolution voted upon by all members of the House. Tobagonians have been purposeful in the kind of governing structure that it wants.

The only suitable alternative to the recommended People's House would have been to separate the Executive from the legislature, and to create a House of FULL-TIME Area Representatives, whose function it is to vet and approve appointments to the Executive from the Chief Secretary/Premier, pass legislation, hold committee hearings and to robustly hold to account the Executive.

By the way, Tobagoians had overwhelmingly rejected the title of Premier, yet it ended up in the draft bills produced by the Joint Select Committee.

Initially, in 2016, Tobago submitted the following: "141A. (1) There shall be a Tobago Legislature which shall consist of the President, the House of Assembly and a People's House the composition of which People's House shall be determined by the House of Assembly.” Perhaps what is needed are broad measures, the detailing of a list of rights and responsibilities and the allowance of the new THA to build out the structure it desires.

Participatory Democracy

Embedded in the constitutional change should be the right of Tobagonians to participate in their government outside of voting. This, as opposed to some of the structural changes, should be enshrined. That way, it is not left up to the whims and fancy of the government of the day. A constitutional amendment must begin from the premise that the people own the country. Accordingly, consistent with the UN's Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), it must make provisions for the people to influence routinely the normal decisions made by the government they hire. From that premise, the most fundamental issue in the proposed Bill is an error of omission. It makes no provision for the right of the people of Tobago to petition and lobby (seek assistance of) their government, without fear of vindictive and repressive repercussions and reprisals by government. Other than voting to elect representatives every four years, the public is a bystander and not an active player in the proposed governance arrangements. The document needs to provide for the people to:

- a. Have the right to communicate their own views on any issue to the Parliament of Tobago (and Trinidad) and to encourage members of the general public to do the same.
- b. Have access to routine methods of communicating their views to the government.

These could include mandatory hearings on the budget and other issues of importance to Tobago, such as the Inter-Island Ferry Service.

- i. Electronic participation can be considered in this context.

Tobago Divisions of the Public Service Commission and Teaching Service Commission (Clauses 15, 16 and 17)

Although the Tobago Civil Service is recognized in its own right, there is insistence on the Public Service Commission having jurisdiction. The concession is two appointees from Tobago. Would this satisfy the needs of Tobago civil servants? If no specific provisions are made to address the matters from a policy and operational arrangement it would not adequately address the concerns. A major concern is that it isn't clear as to how transfers and promotions through the national service will work. Will Tobagonian Public Servants now working in Trinidad be able to seamlessly transfer home or be promoted home in Tobago? The same concern for Trinidadian Public Servants is being raised.

Additionally, the governance arrangements still leaves the Public Service without access to anti-corruption whistle-blower arrangements and the shelter of a legislature with adequate capacity for oversight and petitioning. This is inconsistent with the arrangements required for a competent, liberated and creative Public Service that can support Tobago's efforts to innovate and compete.

This country has witnessed how Political leaders have used their powers to unduly influence the promotion or positioning of public servants in an effort to silence "troublemakers". There are court cases where public servants have had to take politicians to court and win claims/judgement to preserve their rights as public servants. Evidently, just giving the Premier the power to advise the President, is an attempt to mirror a system that is faulty. It must also be noted, that while on the national level both the Prime Minister and the Opposition Leader are consulted, the Minority Leader is never consulted in the proposed arrangement for Tobago

Defining Tobago and its Jurisdiction

In the Bill, Tobago is defined without legitimate economic-geographical boundaries. In particular, the applicable definition is “For the purposes of sections 53, 75A and Chapter 11A, a reference to “Tobago” means the Island of Tobago, Little Tobago, St. Giles Island, Marble Island, Goat Island, Sisters Island and the internal and inland waters of Tobago.”

Gone are the boundaries provided in the current THA Act: “the island of Tobago and such part of the territorial sea of Trinidad and Tobago comprising those areas of the sea having as their inner limits the baselines of Tobago as determined in accordance with section 5 of the Territorial Sea of Trinidad and Tobago Act, and as their outer limits, a line measured seaward from those baselines, every point of which is distant SIX nautical miles from the nearest point of those baselines”. The result is that Tobago won’t even have legislative control over its famous Buccoo Reef.

Gone too are the boundaries in the earlier Constitution (Amendment) (Tobago Self-Government) Bill, 2018, which proposed “Tobago, Little Tobago, St. Giles Island, Marble Island, Goat Island, Sisters Island and such area of the archipelagic waters of Trinidad and Tobago, including any islands, the seabed and the subsoil, that lies within eleven miles from the low water-mark of Tobago.

Nowhere in sight are the boundaries of the Tobago Self-Government Bill, 2016, which proposed that “Tobago shall comprise the island of Tobago, Little Tobago, St. Giles Island, Marble Island, Goat Island, Sisters Island and other off-shore islands and the archipelagic waters lying landward of the established straight base-lines the 12-mile territorial sea measured seawards from the said base-lines as well as the inland waters equidistant between the island of Trinidad and the island of Tobago and to the extent of the territorial sea of Trinidad and Tobago and the superjacent air-space above these aforementioned maritime areas and over the land-space.”

So, the desired natural economic-geographical jurisdiction of the Tobago Island Government defined in terms of the equidistant (median) line between Tobago and Trinidad is ignored. This is a denial of the natural rights of the people of Tobago. It even rejects and removes the boundaries of the existing THA Act #40, 1996, which provides for a jurisdiction up to 6-miles from baseline.

The absence of Tobago's natural boundaries is a deliberate barrier to Tobago's right to a specific formula and predictable arrangement to finance its push for development on behalf of the nation.

The issue surrounding the definition of Tobago is also tied to the larger issue of the authority of two legislatures to make laws for the same jurisdiction. There is precedence for this type of arrangement all around the world. This kind of dual jurisdiction can be found in Canada's Oceans Act, Sections 9, 20, 21, and 26 (The entire piece of legislation is attached).[See Images from Canada OceansAct]

Misleading Advice from the Attorney General

The Attorney General at the virtual Public Consultation partially misled the public on the advice he received from Ambassador Gerald Thompson. AG Al Wari worried Tobago by stating categorically that it was not only ill-advised to define Tobago in the Bill, but to also establish any part of Tobago waters for the jurisdiction of the Tobago Island Government. We have since made public a leaked copy of the said advice, which has not been disputed by the Attorney General. While Ambassador Thompson did (wrongly) opine that it will be detrimental to our claim on marine boundaries to define Tobago, he also advised that Tobago should be allocated 11 miles (which is beyond the current 6 miles contained in Act 40 of 1996) in what he termed the “Tobago Marine Zone”. He went further to advise that there should be an established formula for the sharing of royalties from all resource exploration into the continental shelf. This goes beyond oil and gas.

A copy of that leaked advice is attached in the appendix of this document. Here are two (2) instructive quotes from that advice:

“Being geographically the most easterly and therefore the most seaward part of the Republic of Trinidad and Tobago, Tobago contributes to the unitary State by permitting Trinidad and Tobago to project its claim to the Continental Shelf and the Extended Continental Shelf appertaining to its landmass much deeper into the Atlantic Ocean than would be the case if Tobago did not exist or was not part of the Republic of Trinidad and Tobago. Accordingly, a strengthening of the draft provisions on revenuesharing from the resources of the Continental Shelf located in deeper waters, including the resources of the Extended Continental Shelf, is likely to yield a greater return to Tobago than an arguably misplaced focus on the prospects of ownership or even revenue-sharing from the hydrocarbon resources of the subsoil of the territorial sea. Such strengthening could conceivably include provisions for the deposit of a percentage of revenue earned from deep water development of hydrocarbons into a recast Tobago Development Fund in which political control is lessened and citizen involvement is magnified” (Thompson, 2018 Page 10).

“It would in the circumstances be sufficient to delineate or demarcate an area around Tobago that is up to eleven (11) miles from the low-water mark on the coast of Tobago. Eleven miles is suggested as the upper limit for delineation of the Tobago Maritime Zone because anything in excess of 11 miles would involve a delimitation of the maritime space off the north east tip of Trinidad and the south west coast of Tobago. In any event, a Tobago Maritime Zone drawn from the low-water mark could result in a larger maritime area falling under the jurisdiction of the Tobago Legislature and the TIG than would have been possible from the application of a s.4 (b) of the Tobago House of Assembly Act, assuming that the provision could have been operationalised if it had been amended to cure the deficiency posed by the absence of any straight baselines off Tobago’s west coast” (Thompson, 2018 Page 11).

Thompson suggested not using any of the terms in the international laws such as: Archipelagic, Territorial waters, Economic Exclusive Zone. We can creatively define Tobago without using those terms but by simply using distance.

Furthermore, when one looks at Scotland’s case, as per the Scotland Act of 1998, it remains part of the Unitary State of the United Kingdom, has full control of its entire Exclusive Economic Zone and has the ability to call a referendum to leave the Union if it so chooses. [See Images Below]

Using Scotland as Case Study S.1 Scotland Act 1998 (interpretation)

"Scotland" includes so much of the internal waters and territorial sea of the United Kingdom as are adjacent to Scotland, "the Scottish zone" means the sea within British fishery limits (that is, the limits set by or under S.1 Fishery Limits Act (1976) which is adjacent to Scotland.

Fishery Limits Act (1976) S.1

Subject to the following provisions of this section, British fishery limits extend to the seaward limits of any area for the time being designated by Order in Council under section 41(3) of the Marine and Coastal Access Act 2009 (exclusive economic zone).

Marine and Coastal Access Act 2009 (exclusive economic zone) S.41(3)

Her Majesty may by Order in Council designate an area as an area within which the rights to which this section applies are exercisable (an "exclusive economic zone").

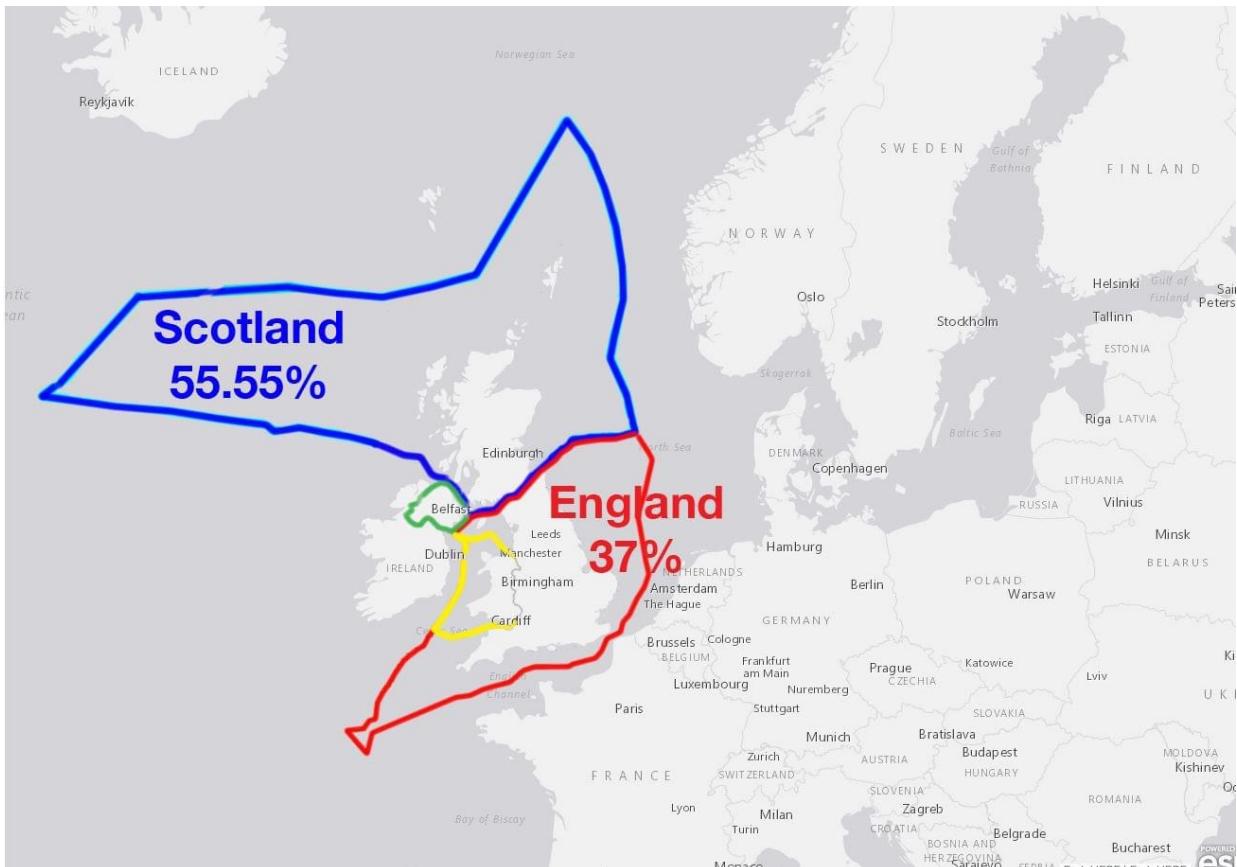

S.41(4) The Secretary of State may by order designate the whole or any part of the exclusive economic zone as an area in relation to which the Scottish Ministers, the Welsh Ministers or any Northern Ireland department are to have functions.

Implications for the Blue Economy

Should the current draft bills be passed as is, Tobago loses the significant potential for economic development. The Tobago Island Government's inability to legislate over its waters means that any and every development agenda for the blue economy must pass through cabinet and the parliament and hopefully gain favour before it is explored. The blue economy opportunities that are shut out by these draft bills include (but are not limited to):

- a) Fisheries
- b) Aquaculture
- c) Coastal and Marine Tourism
- d) Marine Biology and Bioprospecting
- e) Extractive Industries: Non-Living Resources
- f) Desalination (freshwater generation)
- g) Renewable Marine (off-shore) Energy
- h) Maritime Transport, Ports, Marinas and Related Services, Shipping and Shipbuilding/boatbuilding
- i) Waste Disposal Management
- j) Ocean Monitoring and Surveillance
- k) Ecosystem-based Management
- l) Activities Supporting Carbon Sequestration (Blue Carbon)
- m) Supportive Financial Mechanisms

Financing

Many of the arrangements of the Bill combine to produce an inadequate and unfair share of national revenues critical to Tobago's push for development. In the absence of adequate boundaries for Tobago, a gratuitous provision is made to give Tobago the following:

- a) An unjustified minimum of 6.8% of the budget, which is picked out of thin air and can even be judged as unfair to Trinidadians.
- b) A Fiscal Review Commission, which can determine if conditions require that Tobago be given more than 6.8%. The Commission comprises 3 members from the Cabinet and 2 from the THA:

This Commission is effectively another expression of the grab for colonizing powers over Tobago, since it is dominated by Cabinet. A gratuitous minimum and colonizing Fiscal Review Commission would not be required if Tobago is assigned its proper boundaries as defined by the equidistant line between the islands.

The Fiscal Review was intended to be undertaken by independent professional/technical personnel, the composition of the Commission by the Minister and the Secretary appear to militate against this concept. It should embody a revenue-sharing concept.

The permission for borrowing being left to the Minister has proven counter productive over the years, this is the first year (2021) since 1996 that the THA has been able to access loans.

Management of Investments by Central Bank, is this done for the Central Government? No. Would Central bank have a presence in Tobago and help in formulating Fiscal Policy? There is also no guaranteed disbursement timeframe as is contained in the current law.

The financial appropriation to Tobago should be a one line item in the national budget with the internal allocations to be done subsequently by the Tobago Island Government. What's the usefulness of creating a budget to be sent to the Minister of Finance, who then allocates strictly base on a prescribed percentage and never above? Why not simply allocate the finances and allow the Tobago Island Government do its budgetary allocations internally?

On the vexed matter of fixing proper provisions for national development opportunity for Tobago in the Constitution, it is noted that on the basis of the equidistant line, Tobago can be granted a fair and predictable share of revenues based on internationally tested and trusted principles applying the facts of the local case:

A. Recurrent revenues as determined by an equal share for every citizen, which would assign Tobago a share of national recurrent expenditures equal to its share of the population. This was the precedent set by the Dispute Resolution Comission.

B. Development revenues assigned by a share of development expenditures equal to the arithmetic mean of the population share (5%) and the share of the economic geographical space for which Tobago is responsible to develop (60%). This approach is fair and predictable, and avoids the politicized, gratuitous and colonizing approach of the proposed bills of the Central Government. It removes the discretion of the Minister of Finance in Trinidad and gives Tobago firm foundations for launching a credible development program on the national account.

Formalized Denial of Self-Determination and Equality of Status

The governance arrangements in the Bill also include formalized denials of self-determination and equality of status:

- a. The Central Government reserves the right to intervene in the governance of Tobago whenever it deems that a crisis exists that demands that intervention. Only the Central Government is empowered to define those crisis conditions.
 - i. Section 11(1) “There shall be a Cabinet for Trinidad and Tobago which shall have—(b) in relation to Tobago, no responsibility for the matters set out in the Fifth Schedule, unless there is an emergency or unforeseen circumstance requiring the intervention of the Cabinet.”
- b. The Central Government dominates the dispute resolution process. In 144:
 - i. The Constitution is amended by creating a 5-member Mediation Committee, comprising:
 1. the Prime Minister, who shall be the Chairman or his alternate;
 2. Two Cabinet members
 3. the Premier, who shall be the Vice Chairman or his alternate;
 4. one person appointed from the Executive Council.
 - ii. The Mediation Committee shall have the jurisdiction to mediate or mitigate any disputes that may arise in relation to the exercise of administrative powers set out in the Fifth Schedule.
 - iii. So here, the parties to the dispute (Cabinet and the Executive Council), who are also responsible to trigger the dispute, are members of the Mediation Committee. This is contrary to standard practice in which disputes are resolved by the courts or by impartial special-purpose vehicles endowed with judicial powers, as in the current THA Act.

- c. The Central Government dominates the process of determination of the budget to be assigned to Tobago. It proposes:
 - i. A 6.8% minimum budgetary allocation
 - ii. Adjustment upwards under a Fiscal Review Commission dominated by the Cabinet, because it comprises:
 - 1. a Chairman, who shall be the Minister with responsibility for finance or his alternate;
 - 2. a Deputy Chairman, who shall be the Secretary with responsibility for finance or his alternate;
 - 3. one member appointed by the Tobago Executive Council; and
 - 4. two members appointed by the Cabinet.
 - iii. Borrowing arrangements delinked from the economic performance of Tobago and approved by the Minister of Finance. It is also promised that the Minister would “normally approve” Tobago’s borrowing requests.

The governance arrangements include provisions for the Parliament in Trinidad to prescribe rules of conduct of the Tobago Island Government. In Section 141C(4):

“In other respects, the powers, privileges and immunities of the House of Assembly, Members and committees of the House of Assembly, shall be such as may from time to time be prescribed by Parliament”.

Conclusion

In the pursuit of autonomy, Tobago insists that This Bill should construe Tobago's autonomy as a Tobago Bill of Rights, featuring:

- A. Explicitly defined appropriate (economic geographical) boundaries of Tobago and a related fair share of national development financing for Tobago. Here, Tobago will have to be defined using the median (equidistant) boundary line between itself and Trinidad.
- B. The right of the people of Tobago to petition and oversee their government without fear of political victimization and other retribution.
- C. The right of the people of Tobago to design and establish a (democratic) government of their choice, including all rules governing the conduct of the representatives of the people.
- D. The right of the people of Tobago to develop the Tobago economy in the interest of the island and the nation.
- E. The right of the people of Tobago to agree to any prescribed powers of the Government of Trinidad and Tobago and to all reserved (unprescribed) powers.
- F. The right of the people of Tobago to concurrence whenever, with respect to the prescribed powers of the Government of Trinidad and Tobago, any decision is made in the Parliament of Trinidad and Tobago that will have a direct effect on Tobago.

Once the above is done, it sets the stage for granting Tobago autonomy in a fair manner.

The Way Forward

Fresh drafts that are more in line with what Tobago submitted in 2016 must be done. Unfortunately, the draft bills must be rejected!

Advice from Ambassador
Gerald Thompson

Opinion on certain maritime aspects of the draft Bill for an Act to Amend the Constitution of the Republic of Trinidad and Tobago to accord self-government to Tobago, to repeal the Tobago House of Assembly Act, Chap. 25:03 and for related matters

The policy to which the draft Bill seeks to give legislative expression is the grant of full internal self-government to Tobago as an integral part of the sovereign democratic Republic of Trinidad and Tobago. It is noteworthy that the policy of conferring greater autonomy on the proposed Tobago Island Government (TIG) is consistent with the thrust in Trinidad to grant greater devolution of authority to the Municipal Corporations.

Clause 4 of the draft Bill seeks, inter alia, to amend the Constitution to provide for definitions of the Island of Trinidad and the Island of Tobago in relation to the archipelagic baselines as well as the archipelagic waters and the territorial sea now appertaining to the republic of Trinidad and Tobago. The draft Bill in Clause 4(5) seeks to delineate a maritime area over which the Tobago Island Government would have jurisdiction. There is also language in Clause 4 which refers to the exercise by Trinidad and Tobago of sovereign rights over the living and non-living resources of the Exclusive Economic Zone (EEZ) and “its” continental shelf. It is to be noted in this regard that Trinidad and Tobago’s claim to the continental shelf is not restricted to the seabed and subsoil of the 200-mile EEZ but extends much further to 350 nautical miles from the territorial sea baselines and beyond.

In treating with the delineation of a maritime area over which the relevant Tobago institutions would have jurisdiction, taking into account the island’s constitutional history and the separation of its population by sea from Trinidad, consideration would need to be given to:

- (a) whether the jurisdiction to be conferred on the proposed TIG should extend to a designated area of maritime space around the island of Tobago (hereinafter referred to as the “Tobago Maritime Zone”);
- (b) how should the Tobago Maritime Zone be delineated or demarcated;
- (c) the envisaged spatial extent of the Tobago Maritime Zone; and
- (d) the powers and responsibilities exercisable by the TIG in the proposed Tobago Maritime Zone.

Whether the jurisdiction to be conferred on the proposed Tobago Island Government should extend to the Tobago Maritime Zone

It is not unreasonable to adopt the position that the TIG should possess the power to enforce its laws in the sea surrounding Tobago. If it were otherwise, the TIG would lack the authority to enforce certain laws relating to activities or operations in the waters adjacent to Tobago. For example, as part of its regulation of the use of certain equipment in the waters surrounding Tobago, the TIG may decide to impose restrictions on where such equipment may be used. It would need to have the requisite jurisdiction conferred by Parliament in order to enforce any such laws. As part of its responsibilities in telecommunications, the TIG would need to be vested with the authority to deal with violators of the relevant laws who might base their operations at sea in the waters surrounding Tobago in order to avoid the reach of a Government whose remit extends only to the terrestrial sphere and stops at the low-water mark.

Likewise, if the powers and responsibilities of the TIG include fisheries, it would need to have a clearly delineated maritime space over which its jurisdiction could be exercised. It is relevant to note in this regard that fisheries is one of those areas in respect of which the Republic of Trinidad and Tobago maintains, by treaty or agreements and arrangements made pursuant to various treaties, obligations to the other States of the international community which can only be properly carried out by the Central Government.

Accordingly, it is important to consider that any conferment of authority on the TIG for fisheries in the Tobago Maritime Zone would have to be made subject to the continuing authority of the Central Government to treat in that Zone with those fisheries matters for which it continues to have international responsibility on behalf of the Republic of Trinidad and Tobago. Any fisheries laws made by the Tobago Legislature would need to respect this existing separation of powers and responsibilities.

Management of the operational issues which would inevitably arise, in fisheries and other sectors, when two different entities exercise concurrent jurisdiction in the same space would need to be addressed and clarified in memoranda of understanding or protocols developed by the relevant divisions of the Central Government and the TIG.

In this regard, it is noteworthy that s.4 of the Tobago House of Assembly Act states in pertinent part as follows:

“4. No provision of this Act or of an Assembly Law shall be construed or interpreted so as to authorise—

(a) ...

(b) any operation of any Assembly Law beyond the confines of the island of Tobago and such part of the territorial sea of Trinidad and Tobago comprising those areas of the sea having as their inner limits the baselines of Tobago as determined in accordance with section 5 of the Territorial Sea Act, and as their outer limits, a line measured seaward from those baselines, every point of which is distant six nautical miles from the nearest point of those baselines unless the contrary is expressly stated therein;

(c) ...”

It is evident that the current Tobago House of Assembly Act (THA Act) envisages in s.4(b) that the operation of any Assembly Law would extend up to a distance of six nautical miles measured from the territorial sea baselines of Tobago as determined in accordance with s.5 of the Territorial Sea Act. The territorial sea baselines mentioned in s.5 of the Territorial Sea Act are in fact the archipelagic baselines of Trinidad and Tobago from which the breadth of the territorial sea of the State of the Republic of Trinidad and Tobago is measured. It is not known whether this provision of the THA Act has ever been operationalised.

In the course of extending the reach of Assembly Laws to the territorial sea, s.4(b) creates an implementation gap that could not have been intended when it describes the space over which the Laws would apply as constituting “the island of Tobago and such part of the territorial sea ...” By completely ignoring the archipelagic waters intervening between the land and the territorial sea, this description leads to an irrational result in which Assembly Laws would be capable of being applied on land and in the territorial sea but not in the intervening archipelagic waters.

Section 4(b) of the THA Act suffers from a second major defect. In the effort to define Tobago so as to include some maritime space over which Assembly Laws would be applied, Tobago is defined with reference to “the baselines of Tobago as determined in accordance with section 5 of the Territorial Sea Act”. Manifestly, no such separate archipelagic baselines exist for Tobago (or for Trinidad) in accordance with s.5 of the Territorial Sea Act.

Whether or not s.4(b) has ever been operationalised, there is no gainsaying that this important provision of the existing THA Act is so defective as to render its effective implementation unlikely or problematic at best. Section 4(b) of the THA Act is relevant to a consideration of Clauses 4(4) and 4(5) of the draft Bill because they are both premised on the existence of archipelagic baselines separately around Trinidad and separately around Tobago. The draft Bill avoids the first defect of s.4 (b) of the THA Act by making specific mention of the archipelagic waters around Tobago, but it nevertheless imports the second major defect where it purports to define the Island of Trinidad and the Island of Tobago in relation to non-existent baselines around Trinidad and Tobago respectively. It bears repeating that the straight archipelagic baselines referred to in s.5 of the Territorial Sea Act are baselines around Trinidad and Tobago and not baselines separately around Trinidad and separately around Tobago.

The first question may, therefore, be answered in the positive by virtue of the arguments advanced above as well as by reference to the intendment, not the actual operation, of s.4(b) of the THA Act. In sum, as a practical matter, the TIG would need to exercise some jurisdiction in the waters adjacent to the shores of Tobago. But, importantly, s.4(b) of the THA Act does not offer an appropriate guide as to how the Tobago Maritime Zone should be delineated or demarcated.

How should the Tobago Maritime Zone be delineated or demarcated

The current draft Bill produced by the Tobago House of Assembly proposes that there should be a definition for the Island of Trinidad and the Island of Tobago as constituent parts of the Republic of Trinidad and Tobago. The Island of Trinidad is defined by reference to the archipelagic waters and the territorial sea of the Republic of Trinidad and Tobago adjacent to it. Likewise, the Island of Tobago is defined by reference to the archipelagic waters and the territorial sea of the Republic of Trinidad and Tobago adjacent to it. The resulting overlapping archipelagic waters and territorial sea between the Island of Trinidad and the Island of Tobago are then delimited by an equidistant line between north east Trinidad and south west Tobago.

It is noted that the approach to the creation in the draft Bill of what is here referred to as the Tobago Maritime Zone appears to be guided by the language and intent of s.4 (b) of the Tobago House of Assembly Act. Nevertheless, this approach is seriously flawed for the following reasons:

- (a) it presupposes that the archipelagic baselines can be divided up so as to allocate, attribute or otherwise appropriate some baselines or parts of some baselines and the waters they enclose as well as the seabed and subsoil and air space thereof separately to Trinidad and to Tobago; and
- (b) it assumes that proximity is a proper basis for allocation, attribution or appropriation of archipelagic waters and associated territorial sea and the rights associated therewith, notwithstanding the fact that the whole Republic of Trinidad and Tobago, from Charlotteville to Cedros, contributed to Trinidad and Tobago satisfying the water to land ratio of between 1 to 1 and 9 to 1 provided for in Article 47(1) of UNCLOS for the designation of archipelagic status.

Like the archipelagic baselines, the archipelagic waters and territorial sea, the sovereignty of the Republic of Trinidad and Tobago is not divisible and may not be shared in the way that Clause 4 of the draft Bill may unintentionally suggest.

UNCLOS, other rules of international law and the practice of States provide no support for the bifurcation of the archipelagic waters and territorial sea as proposed in the draft Bill.

Relevant International Law

It is settled international law that in the archipelagic waters and territorial sea the coastal State enjoys sovereignty and may exercise rights analogous to those exercised on its land territory, subject to the right of innocent passage by ships of other States.

The 1982 United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea (UNCLOS) accordingly provides at Articles 2 and 49 as follows:

"Article 2

Legal status of the territorial sea, of the air space over the territorial sea and of its bed and subsoil

1. The sovereignty of a coastal State extends, beyond its land territory and internal waters and, in the case of an archipelagic State, its archipelagic waters, to an adjacent belt of sea, described as the territorial sea.
2. This sovereignty extends to the air space over the territorial sea as well as to its bed and subsoil.
3. The sovereignty over the territorial sea is exercised subject to this Convention and to other rules of international law.

Article 49

Legal status of archipelagic waters, of the air space over archipelagic waters and of their bed and subsoil

1. The sovereignty of an archipelagic State extends to the waters enclosed by the archipelagic baselines drawn in accordance with article 47, described as archipelagic waters, regardless of their depth or distance from the coast.
2. This sovereignty extends to the air space over the archipelagic waters, as well as to their bed and subsoil, and the resources contained therein.
3. This sovereignty is exercised subject to this Part.

4. The regime of archipelagic sea lanes passage established in this Part shall not in other respects affect the status of the archipelagic waters, including the sea lanes, or the exercise by the archipelagic State of its sovereignty over such waters and their air space, bed and subsoil, and the resources contained therein."

Article 2 of UNCLOS unquestionably embodies both conventional and customary international law on the legal status of the territorial sea, of the air space over it and of the seabed and subsoil below it. Similarly, Article 49 of UNCLOS, in terms wholly coincident in substance and largely coincident in language with Article 2, embodies both conventional and customary international law on the legal status of archipelagic waters, of the air space over it and of the seabed and subsoil below it.

There are no archipelagic baselines separately enclosing Trinidad and no archipelagic baselines separately enclosing Tobago. The archipelagic baselines are indivisible. Map 1 demonstrates the existing fact that Trinidad and Tobago together satisfies the requirement in Article 47(1) of UNCLOS for the designation of archipelagic status. The total water area of the established archipelagic waters is approximately 7128.8 sq km versus the total land area contained within which is approximately 5181.2 sq km. The ratio of the two works out to approximately 1.376 to 1.

On the other hand, Maps 2 and 3 demonstrate that, separately, neither Trinidad nor Tobago can satisfy the requirement in Article 47(1) for the designation of archipelagic status. Regarding Map 2, the total water area of the possible claim of archipelagic waters for Trinidad is approximately 3282.4 sq km versus the total land area contained within which is approximately 4863.6 sq km. The ratio of the two works out to approximately 0.675 to 1. Regarding Map 3, the total water area of the established archipelagic waters for Tobago is approximately 125.8 sq km versus the total land area contained within which is approximately 317.6 sq km. The ratio of the two works out to approximately 0.396 to 1.

Assuming, therefore, that it was possible to divide the archipelagic baselines between Trinidad and Tobago, on the basis of the evidence contained in Maps 1, 2 and 3, it is difficult to discern any rational basis exists for attributing, even notionally, part of the archipelagic baselines to Trinidad and part to Tobago.

There is nothing to suggest in either Article 2 or 49 that it is possible to segment or apportion the archipelagic waters or the adjacent belt of territorial sea, qua archipelagic waters and territorial sea, and the sovereignty over the archipelagic waters, territorial sea, the air space above these areas as well as the seabed and subsoil below these waters to parts of the coastal State. Territorial sovereignty and sovereign rights in respect of the resources of the continental shelf adjacent to their coasts are attributes of coastal States themselves and not of their constituent parts.

The Practice of States in their Municipal Law

Several federal States including, the United States of America and Canada and unitary States with special constitutional arrangements such as the United Kingdom have had to deal with demands from those political divisions of the State with coastal frontages for ownership of maritime space, or ownership of the mineral resources of the seabed and subsoil, or for equitable sharing of the revenue generated by the development of the mineral resources, particularly, hydrocarbons, of the Continental Shelf.

United States of America

In the United States pursuant to the Submerged Lands Act passed by Congress in 1953, the seaward extent of the jurisdiction of the littoral states of the Federation are as follows:

- Texas and the Gulf coast of Florida are extended 3 marine leagues (9 nautical miles) seaward from the baselines from which the breadth of the territorial sea is measured.
- Louisiana is extended 3 U.S. nautical miles seaward of the baselines from which the breadth of the territorial sea is measured.
- All other States' seaward limits are extended 3 International Nautical Miles seaward of the baselines from which the breadth of the territorial sea is measured.¹

Although power over navigation, commerce and international affairs was specifically retained by the United States under the Act, the grant to the states was quite broad, including the mineral, fishery and plant resources of the seabed and water column.

When in 1976 Congress passed the Fishery Conservation and Management Act which extended United States fisheries management jurisdiction to 200 miles seaward of the territorial sea baselines, state control over the fishery within the three mile zone was retained. The states continue to manage fisheries in the territorial sea subject to constitutional restraints, pre-emption by inconsistent federal law, and the possibility of federal override of state jurisdiction by the Secretary of Commerce in the case of fish stocks found predominantly within the 197-mile zone seaward of state jurisdiction.²

Canada

In Canada the Courts have consistently ruled that sovereignty of the territorial sea was vested in the State and not the provinces, unless the constitutional and historical record of the province indicated that a different outcome was legally merited.

² Thomas J. Schoenbaum & Frank Parker Jr., Federalism in the Coastal Zone: Three Models of State Jurisdiction and Control, 57 N.C. L. Rev. 231 (1979).

In Newfoundland and Labrador given its peculiar constitutional position when it joined the Union in 1949, the provincial Court of Appeal held that the province exercises jurisdiction from the low-water mark on the coast to three (3) miles offshore; jurisdiction from three (3) to twelve (12) miles rests with Canada. The Court of Appeal decided in favour of Canada in respect of rights available on the continental shelf.

In the Hibernia Reference, the British Columbia Reference and the *Newfoundland Reference*³, the Supreme Court of Canada has decided in favour of Canada with respect to continental shelf rights. The Court has held for a province to sustain a claim to continental shelf rights, there would need to be clear evidence from the constitutional or historical records that the province had been in a position to acquire, and had acquired extra-territorial rights of a nature that allowed it to claim jurisdiction over the Continental Shelf.

The main jurisdictional disputes over rights to the continental shelf ended in 1985 when the Government of Canada entered into joint management and revenue-sharing agreements with the provinces in respect of the hydrocarbon resources of the Continental Shelf. The provinces will be entitled to collect revenues from continental shelf operations as if the resources were located on land.

United Kingdom

In 2010 it was estimated that the Scottish share of total oil production in the United Kingdom Continental Shelf was more than 95% while for gas it was 58%. The Scottish share of total hydrocarbon production (including natural gas liquids) was 80%. The Scottish share of tax revenues generated from the oil and gas industry exceeded 90%. This reflected the much higher value of oil compared to gas.

It was estimated in 2010 that if Scotland were to obtain a "geographical share" of revenues based on the median line, about 90% of the United Kingdom's oil resources would be under Scottish jurisdiction.

Notwithstanding its dominant contribution to hydrocarbon production in the United Kingdom, as part of the unitary State, Scotland receives a per capita share of the revenues accruing to the Government from the production of oil and gas in the North Sea.

Revenue sharing

The draft Bill does contemplate equitable revenue sharing from the mineral resources of Trinidad and Tobago's Continental Shelf. Presumably, the request for revenue sharing would apply as well to the Extended Continental Shelf in respect of which the United Nations Commission on the Limits of the

³ Ian Townsend Gault, Jurisdiction over the Petroleum Resources of the Canadian Continental Shelf: The Emerging Picture, XXIII No. 1 Alberta L. Rev. 75 (1985)

Continental Shelf (CLCS) now has for consideration a submission from Trinidad and Tobago made in 2009 to extend the State's continental shelf jurisdiction beyond 200 nautical miles from the territorial sea baselines.

To the extent that the draft Bill seeks to define Tobago by reference to the archipelagic waters and the territorial sea, it may also contemplate ownership of the mineral resources located within the waters of Tobago as defined. For the reasons already adumbrated, such a claim would be technically fraught and could give rise to some foreseeable constitutional difficulties, including on equal treatment grounds. The revenue-sharing provisions addressed later in the draft Bill would avoid this potential constitutional hurdle.

In any event, from a practical standpoint, it is worth considering whether advancement of such a claim would be a worthy issue for negotiation and compromise, especially when regard is had to the fact that the geology and geomorphology of the seabed and subsoil of the area near to Tobago suggests that the prospects of finding hydrocarbons in commercial quantities within the territorial sea so close to the shores of Tobago may not be particularly promising.

Being geographically the most easterly and therefore the most seaward part of the Republic of Trinidad and Tobago, Tobago contributes to the unitary State by permitting Trinidad and Tobago to project its claim to the Continental Shelf and the Extended Continental Shelf appertaining to its landmass much deeper into the Atlantic Ocean than would be the case if Tobago did not exist or was not part of the Republic of Trinidad and Tobago. Accordingly, a strengthening of the draft provisions on revenue-sharing from the resources of the Continental Shelf located in deeper waters, including the resources of the Extended Continental Shelf, is likely to yield a greater return to Tobago than an arguably misplaced focus on the prospects of ownership or even revenue-sharing from the hydrocarbon resources of the subsoil of the territorial sea. Such strengthening could conceivably include provisions for the deposit of a percentage of revenue earned from deep water development of hydrocarbons into a recast Tobago Development Fund in which political control is lessened and citizen involvement is magnified.

Since the national budget currently is based in part on revenues received from the development of the hydrocarbon resources of the Continental Shelf and Tobago presently receives a share of the budget based on the recommendation of the Dispute Resolution Commission, if a formula is devised to permit the deposit of a share of the revenue from the development of the resources of the Continental Shelf and Extended Continental Shelf into the Tobago Development Fund, such a formula would need to avoid Tobago being seen to dip twice into the same revenue stream.

Definition of Trinidad and Tobago

Section 1(2) of the Constitution of the Republic of Trinidad and Tobago provides as follows:

"Trinidad and Tobago shall comprise the Island of Trinidad, the Island of Tobago and any territories that immediately before the 31st day of August 1962 were dependencies of Trinidad and Tobago, including the seabed and subsoil situated beneath the territorial sea and the continental shelf of Trinidad and Tobago ("territorial sea" and "continental shelf" here having the same meaning as in the Territorial Sea Act and the Continental Shelf Act, respectively), together with such other areas as may be declared by Act to form part of the territory of Trinidad and Tobago."

The opportunity should be taken to amend this sub-section of the Constitution to introduce the concept of archipelagic waters before mention is made of the territorial sea. The definition of the Republic of Trinidad and Tobago used in current Double Taxation and Air Services Agreements may be adopted or adapted for this purpose.

The envisaged spatial extent of the Tobago Maritime Zone

Assuming that the stated defects did not impair the definitions of Trinidad and Tobago in Clauses 4(4) and 4(5) of the draft Bill, the mere attribution of part of the archipelagic waters and territorial sea to Trinidad and part to Tobago, without more, might lead to the impression that, subject to the right of innocent passage by other States, these two constituent parts of the Republic of Trinidad and Tobago would enjoy in their respective maritime areas, sovereignty over the waters, the living resources of the water column, the non-living resources of the seabed and subsoil, and the air space above these areas. If, rather, it is intended that Parliament would confer certain limited, shared or negotiated rights on the Tobago Legislature and the TIG, in the context of a purely domestic arrangement between the Tobago House of Assembly and the Central Government of the Republic of Trinidad and Tobago, then the definition of the Island of Tobago and the Island of Trinidad as proposed in the draft Bill is not necessary.

Of course, the indivisibility of both the archipelagic waters and the territorial sea appertaining to the Republic of Trinidad and Tobago as well as the sovereignty which the coastal State enjoys in these maritime areas does not mean that the State is unable, as part of a purely domestic arrangement, to confer certain powers and responsibilities on constituent parts of the coastal State. Bearing in mind that Trinidad and Tobago's rights in respect of the territorial sea, archipelagic waters and Continental Shelf arise not from domestic law but from its legal basis of title under international law, the State is free to confer powers and responsibilities on its political divisions, while respecting the international obligations that it is tasked with fulfilling on the international plane.

Whether a delimitation of the maritime space between Trinidad and Tobago would be necessary or desirable would depend, in part, on:

- (a) the powers and responsibilities which are to be conferred on the Tobago Legislature and the TIG;
- (b) the powers and responsibilities which would continue to reside with the Central Government in relation to Tobago; and
- (c) the arrangements proposed in the draft Bill for enhanced sharing of revenue derived from the development of the hydrocarbon resources of the continental shelf and extended continental shelf.

It would in the circumstances be sufficient to delineate or demarcate an area around Tobago that is up to eleven (11) miles from the low-water mark on the coast of Tobago. Eleven miles is suggested as the upper limit for delineation of the Tobago Maritime Zone because anything in excess of 11 miles would involve a delimitation of the maritime space off the north east tip of Trinidad and the south west coast of Tobago.

In any event, a Tobago Maritime Zone drawn from the low-water mark could result in a larger maritime area falling under the jurisdiction of the Tobago Legislature and the TIG than would have been possible from the application of a s.4 (b) of the Tobago House of Assembly Act, assuming that the provision could have been operationalised if it had been amended to cure the deficiency posed by the absence of any straight baselines off Tobago's west coast.

The powers and responsibilities exercisable by the TIG in the proposed Tobago Maritime Zone

It is recognised that the powers and responsibilities of the Tobago Legislature and the TIG would be subject to the stated residual powers and responsibilities of the Central Government in Tobago. Likewise, the jurisdiction conferred in respect of the Tobago Maritime Zone would need to be subject to:

- (a) applicable constitutional restraints;
- (b) pre-emption by inconsistent laws of the Republic of Trinidad and Tobago; and
- (c) the possibility of Central Government override of Tobago jurisdiction in the case of fish stocks found in the EEZ predominantly outside of the Tobago Maritime Zone or which are subject to international rules and regulations binding on the Republic of Trinidad and Tobago.

Conclusion:

The Republic of Trinidad and Tobago as a whole contributed to Trinidad and Tobago being able to satisfy the formula for drawing archipelagic baselines in accordance with Article 47(1) of UNCLOS. The archipelagic baselines are therefore indivisible.

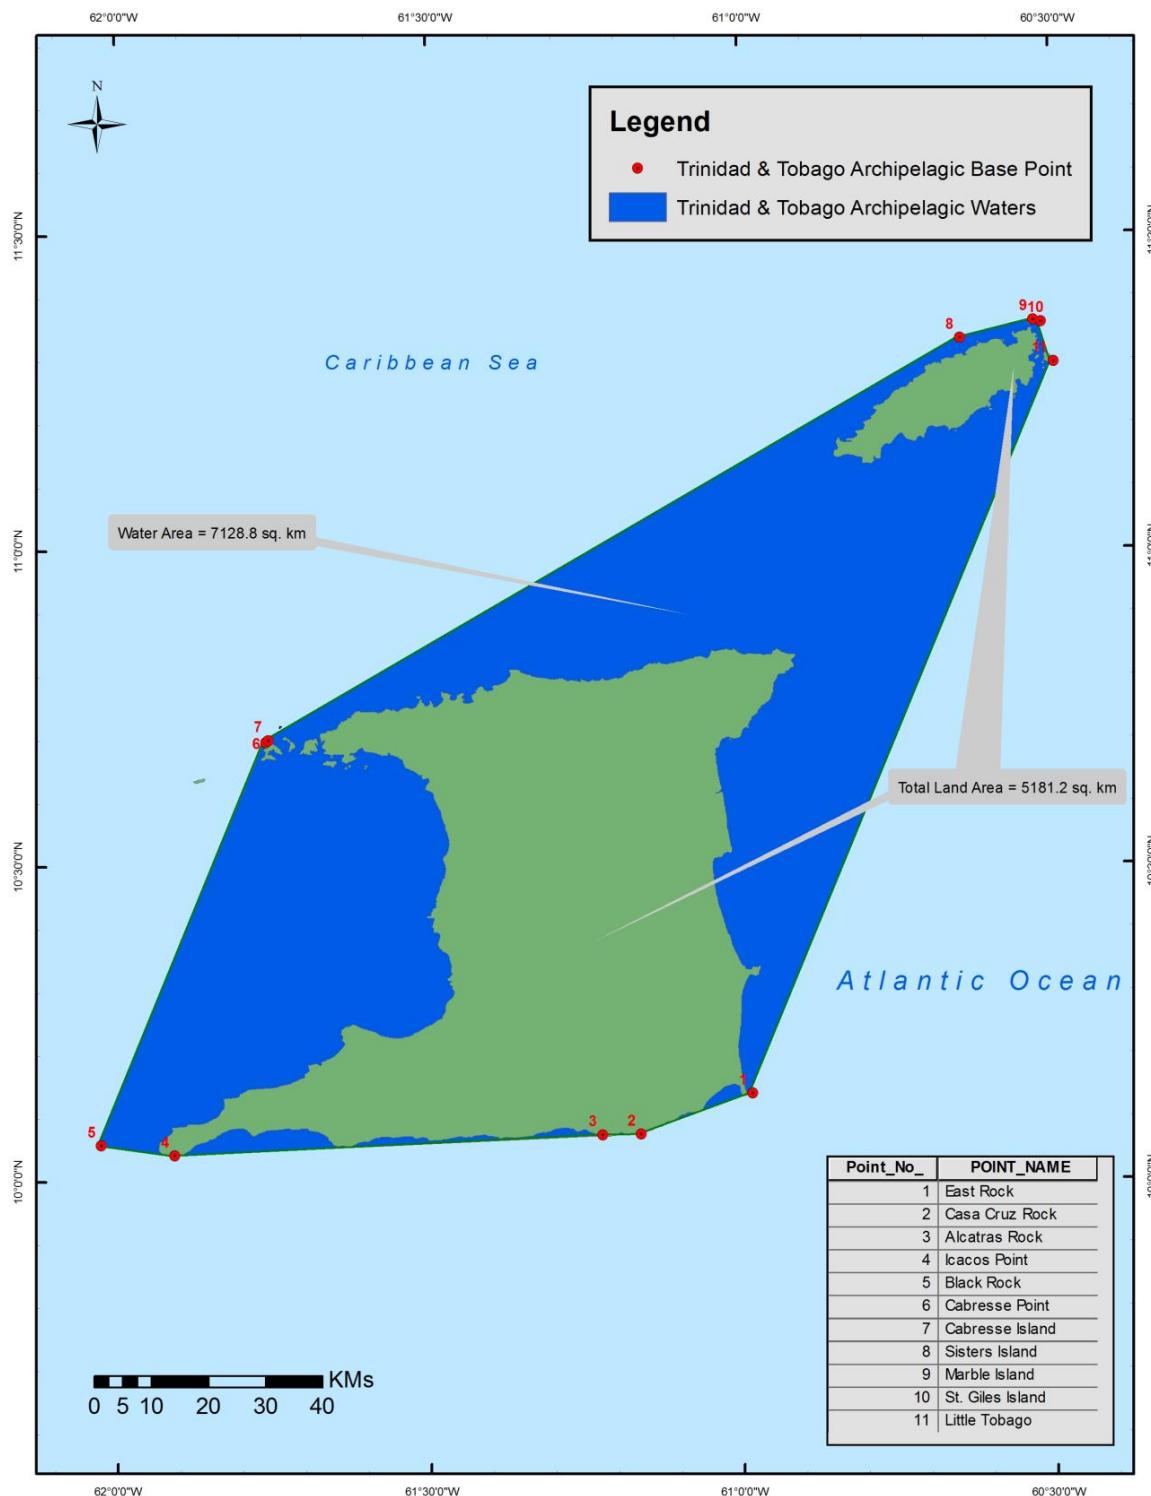

It is not necessary to distinguish between the various maritime zones - archipelagic waters, territorial sea, EEZ and Continental Shelf – appertaining to Trinidad and Tobago under international law when conferring powers and responsibilities on political divisions of the State, provided it is recognised that, subject to the right of innocent passage, rights of the coastal State in the archipelagic waters and territorial sea are analogous to the rights on land, but the rights in the EEZ and Continental Shelf include sovereign rights in respect of the natural resources which do not extend to sovereignty over these two maritime zones.

The equidistant line provision in Clause 4 of the draft Bill is undesirable because it is designed to bifurcate the archipelagic waters and territorial sea and to attribute part of these maritime zones, over which the State is sovereign under international law and domestic law, to Trinidad and to Tobago, respectively. It is also unnecessary because a similar outcome can be secured by a maritime zone established seaward of the low-water mark off Tobago, without reference either to archipelagic waters or the territorial sea and without recourse to maritime delimitation between the island of Trinidad and the island of Tobago.

PARTIE I

Zones maritimes du Canada

Mer territoriale et zone contiguë

Mer territoriale du Canada

4 La mer territoriale du Canada est la zone maritime comprise entre la ligne de base déterminée selon l'article 5 et :

a) soit la ligne dont chaque point est à une distance de 12 milles marins du point le plus proche de la ligne de base;

b) soit, pour toute partie de la mer territoriale ayant fait l'objet d'une liste de coordonnées géographiques have been prescribed pursuant to subparagraph 25(a)(ii), lines determined from the geographical coordinates of points so prescribed.

Determination of the baselines

5 (1) Subject to subsections (2) and (3), the baseline is the low-water line along the coast or on a low-tide elevation that is situated wholly or partly at a distance not exceeding the breadth of the territorial sea of Canada from the mainland or an island.

Geographical coordinates of points

(2) In respect of any area for which geographical coordinates of points have been prescribed pursuant to subparagraph 25(a)(i) and subject to any exceptions in the regulations for

(a) the use of the low-water line along the coast between given points, and

(b) the use of the low-water lines of low-tide elevations that are situated wholly or partly at a distance not exceeding the breadth of the territorial sea of Canada from the mainland or an island, the baselines are straight lines interpreted as geodesics joining the consecutive geographical coordinates of points so prescribed.

Baselines where historic title

(3) In respect of any area not referred to in subsection (2), the baselines are the outer limits of any area, other than the territorial sea of Canada, over which Canada has a historic or other title of sovereignty.

Low-tide elevations

(4) For the purposes of this section, a low-tide elevation is a naturally formed area of land that is surrounded by and above water at low tide but submerged at high tide.

Internal waters of Canada

6 The internal waters of Canada consist of the waters on the landward side of the baselines of the territorial sea of Canada.

Part of Canada

7 For greater certainty, the internal waters of Canada and the territorial sea of Canada form part of Canada.

de points établie sous le régime du sous-alinéa 25a(ii), les géodésiques reliant ces points.

Détermination de la ligne de base

5 (1) Sous réserve des paragraphes (2) et (3), la ligne de base est la laisse de basse mer soit du littoral, soit des hauts-fonds découvrants situés, en tout ou en partie, à une distance de la côte ou d'une île qui ne dépasse pas la largeur de la mer territoriale.

Coordonnées géographiques de points

(2) Dans les secteurs ayant fait l'objet d'une liste de coordonnées géographiques de points établie sous le régime du sous-alinéa 25a(i), la ligne de base est constituée des géodésiques joignant les différents points énumérés sur la liste, sous réserve des exceptions de celle-ci quant à la prise en compte de la laisse de basse mer soit du littoral, soit des hauts-fonds découvrants situés, en tout ou en partie, à une distance de la côte qui ne dépasse pas la largeur de la mer territoriale.

Ligne de base : souveraineté historique

(3) Dans le cas d'un espace maritime non compris dans la mer territoriale et non visé au paragraphe (2) sur lequel le Canada a un titre de souveraineté historique ou autre, la ligne de base est la limite extérieure de cet espace.

Définition de hauts-fonds découvrants

(4) Pour l'application du présent article, les hauts-fonds découvrants sont des élévations naturelles submergées à marée haute et découvertes à marée basse.

Eaux intérieures du Canada

6 Les eaux intérieures du Canada sont les eaux situées en deçà de la ligne de base de la mer territoriale.

Territoire canadien

7 Il est entendu que les eaux intérieures et la mer territoriale du Canada font partie du territoire de celui-ci.

Rights of Her Majesty

8 (1) For greater certainty, in any area of the sea not within a province, the seabed and subsoil below the internal waters of Canada and the territorial sea of Canada are vested in Her Majesty in right of Canada.

Saving

(2) Nothing in this section abrogates or derogates from any legal right or interest held before February 4, 1991.

Application of provincial law

9 (1) Subject to this section and to any other Act of Parliament, the laws of a province apply in any area of the sea

- (a) that forms part of the internal waters of Canada or the territorial sea of Canada;
- (b) that is not within any province; and
- (c) that is prescribed by the regulations.

Limitation

(2) Subject to any regulations made pursuant to paragraph 26(1)(d), subsection (1) does not apply in respect of any provision of a law of a province that

- (a) imposes a tax or royalty; or
- (b) relates to mineral or other non-living natural resources.

Interpretation

(3) For the purposes of this section, the laws of a province shall be applied as if the area of the sea in which those laws apply under this section were within the territory of that province.

Sums due to province

(4) Any sum due under a law of a province that applies in an area of the sea under this section belongs to Her Majesty in right of the province.

Limitation

(5) For greater certainty, this section shall not be interpreted as providing a basis for any claim, by or on behalf of a province, in respect of any interest in or legislative jurisdiction over any area of the sea in which a law of a province applies under this section or the living or non-living resources of that area, or as limiting the application of any federal laws.

Droits de Sa Majesté

8 (1) Il est entendu que, dans le cas des espaces maritimes non compris dans le territoire d'une province, le fond et le sous-sol des eaux intérieures et de la mer territoriale appartiennent à Sa Majesté du chef du Canada.

Réserve

(2) Le présent article n'a pas pour effet de porter atteinte aux droits acquis avant le 4 février 1991.

Application du droit provincial

9 (1) Sous réserve des autres dispositions du présent article et de toute autre loi fédérale, le droit d'une province côtière s'applique aux espaces maritimes extracôtiers faisant partie des eaux intérieures ou de la mer territoriale qui ne sont compris dans le territoire d'aucune province et qui sont désignés par règlement.

Restriction

(2) Sous réserve des règlements pris en vertu de l'alinéa 26(1)d), le paragraphe (1) ne s'applique pas aux règles du droit provincial qui, selon le cas :

- a) imposent une taxe ou des redevances;
- b) traitent des ressources minérales ou autres ressources naturelles non biologiques.

Interprétation

(3) Dans les cas visés par le présent article, le droit provincial s'applique comme si l'espace visé était situé à l'intérieur de la province.

Remise à la province

(4) Les sommes payables au titre d'une règle du droit provincial qui s'applique à l'espace visé au présent article appartiennent à Sa Majesté du chef de la province.

Restriction

(5) Il demeure entendu que ni les provinces, ni qui-conque en leur nom, ne peuvent se fonder sur le présent article pour prétendre à des droits ou à une compétence législative sur les espaces extracôtiers visés ou sur leurs ressources biologiques ou non biologiques; en outre, le présent article n'a pas pour effet de limiter l'application du droit fédéral.

Contiguous zone of Canada

10 The contiguous zone of Canada consists of an area of the sea that has as its inner limit the outer limit of the territorial sea of Canada and as its outer limit the line every point of which is at a distance of 24 nautical miles from the nearest point of the baselines of the territorial sea of Canada, but does not include an area of the sea that forms part of the territorial sea of another state or in which another state has sovereign rights.

Prevention in contiguous zone of infringement of federal laws

11 A person who is responsible for the enforcement of a federal law that is a customs, fiscal, immigration or sanitary law and who has reasonable grounds to believe that a person in the contiguous zone of Canada would, if that person were to enter Canada, commit an offence under that law may, subject to Canada's international obligations, prevent the entry of that person into Canada or the commission of the offence and, for greater certainty, section 25 of the Criminal Code applies in respect of the exercise by a person of any powers under this section.

Enforcement in contiguous zone of federal laws

12 (1) Where there are reasonable grounds to believe that a person has committed an offence in Canada in respect of a federal law that is a customs, fiscal, immigration or sanitary law, every power of arrest, entry, search or seizure or other power that could be exercised in Canada in respect of that offence may also be exercised in the contiguous zone of Canada.

Limitation

(2) A power of arrest referred to in subsection (1) shall not be exercised in the contiguous zone of Canada on board any ship registered outside Canada without the consent of the Attorney General of Canada.

Exclusive Economic Zone

Exclusive economic zone of Canada

13 (1) The exclusive economic zone of Canada consists of an area of the sea beyond and adjacent to the territorial sea of Canada that has as its inner limit the outer limit of the territorial sea of Canada and as its outer limit

(a) subject to paragraph (b), the line every point of which is at a distance of 200 nautical miles from the nearest point of the baselines of the territorial sea of Canada; or

Zone contiguë du Canada

10 La zone contiguë du Canada est la zone maritime comprise entre la limite extérieure de la mer territoriale et la ligne dont chaque point est à une distance de 24 milles marins du point le plus proche de la ligne de base de la mer territoriale, à l'exclusion de tout espace maritime faisant partie de la mer territoriale d'un autre État, ou assujetti aux droits souverains d'un autre État.

Prévention des infractions

11 Sous réserve des obligations internationales du Canada, tout agent chargé de l'application d'une règle du droit fédéral touchant les douanes, la fiscalité, l'immigration ou l'hygiène publique peut, s'il a des motifs raisonnables de croire qu'une personne se trouvant dans la zone contiguë du Canada serait, si elle entrait au Canada, en situation d'infraction à une telle règle de droit, empêcher cette personne d'entrer au Canada ou prévenir la perpétration de l'infraction. Il est entendu que l'article 25 du Code criminel s'applique à toute intervention pratiquée en vertu du présent article.

Pouvoirs accessoires

12 (1) Lorsqu'il existe des motifs raisonnables de croire qu'une infraction à une règle du droit fédéral touchant les douanes, la fiscalité, l'immigration ou l'hygiène publique a été commise au Canada, tous les pouvoirs — notamment ceux d'arrestation, d'accès à des lieux, de perquisition, de fouille et de saisie — qui peuvent être exercés au Canada relativement à une telle infraction peuvent l'être également dans la zone contiguë.

Réserve

(2) L'exercice du pouvoir d'arrestation dans la zone contiguë, à bord d'un navire immatriculé à l'étranger, est subordonné au consentement du procureur général du Canada.

a) soit la ligne dont chaque point est à 200 milles marins du point le plus proche de la ligne de base de la mer territoriale;

b) soit, pour toute partie de la zone économique exclusive ayant fait l'objet d'une liste de coordonnées géographiques de points établie sous le régime du

(b) in respect of a portion of the exclusive economic zone of Canada for which geographical coordinates of points have been prescribed pursuant to subparagraph 25(a)(iii), lines determined from the geographical coordinates of points so prescribed.

Determination of the outer limit of the exclusive economic zone of Canada

(2) For greater certainty, paragraph (1)(a) applies regardless of whether regulations are made pursuant to subparagraph 25(a)(iv) prescribing geographical coordinates of points from which the outer limit of the exclusive economic zone of Canada may be determined.

Sovereign rights and jurisdiction of Canada

14 Canada has

(a) sovereign rights in the exclusive economic zone of Canada for the purpose of exploring and exploiting, conserving and managing the natural resources, whether living or non-living, of the waters superjacent to the seabed and of the seabed and its subsoil, and with regard to other activities for the economic exploitation and exploration of the exclusive economic zone of Canada, such as the production of energy from the water, currents and winds; sous-alinéa 25a)(iii), les géodésiques reliant ces points.

Précision

(2) Il est entendu que l'absence de règlement d'application du sous-alinéa 25a)(iv) n'a pas pour effet de restreindre la portée des droits que peut exercer le Canada au titre de l'alinéa (1)a).

Droits souverains du Canada

14 Le Canada a, sur sa zone économique exclusive :

a) des droits souverains quant à l'exploration et à l'exploitation, la conservation et la gestion des ressources naturelles — biologiques et non biologiques — de celle-ci, des fonds marins, de leur sous-sol et des eaux surjacentes, y compris toute activité liée à l'exploration et à l'exploitation de la zone à des fins économiques, telle la production d'énergie à partir de l'eau, des courants et des vents;

b) compétence pour la mise en place et l'utilisation d'îles artificielles et d'ouvrages en mer, à la recherche scientifique marine, ainsi qu'à la protection et la préservation du milieu marin;

c) les autres droits et obligations prévus par le droit international.

Droits de Sa Majesté

15 (1) Il est entendu que les droits du Canada sur le fond et le sous-sol de sa zone économique exclusive, ainsi que sur les ressources qui s'y trouvent, appartiennent à Sa Majesté du chef du Canada.

Réserve

(2) Le présent article n'a pas pour effet de porter atteinte aux droits acquis avant le 4 février 1991.

Zones de pêche du Canada

16 Les zones de pêche du Canada sont les zones maritimes adjacentes à la côte canadienne qui sont désignées comme telles par règlement.

Continental Shelf

Continental shelf of Canada

17 (1) The continental shelf of Canada is the seabed and subsoil of the submarine areas, including those of the exclusive economic zone of Canada, that extend beyond the territorial sea of Canada throughout the natural prolongation of the land territory of Canada

(a) subject to paragraphs (b) and (c), to the outer edge of the continental margin, determined in the manner under international law that results in the maximum extent of the continental shelf of Canada, the continental margin being the submerged prolongation of the land mass of Canada consisting of the seabed and subsoil of the shelf, the slope and the rise, but not including the deep ocean floor with its oceanic ridges or its subsoil;

(b) to a distance of 200 nautical miles from the baselines of the territorial sea of Canada where the outer edge of the continental margin does not extend up to that distance; or

(c) in respect of a portion of the continental shelf of Canada for which geographical coordinates of points have been prescribed pursuant to subparagraph 25(a)(iii), to lines determined from the geographical coordinates of points so prescribed.

Determination of the outer limit of the continental shelf of Canada

(2) For greater certainty, paragraphs (1)(a) and (b) apply regardless of whether regulations are made pursuant to subparagraph 25(a)(iv) prescribing geographical coordinates of points from which the outer edge of the continental margin or other outer limit of the continental shelf of Canada may be determined.

1996, c. 31, s. 17; 2015, c. 3, s. 137(E).

Sovereign rights of Canada

18 Canada has sovereign rights over the continental shelf of Canada for the purpose of exploring it and exploiting the mineral and other non-living natural resources of the seabed and subsoil of the continental shelf of Canada, together with living organisms belonging to sedentary species, that is to say, organisms that, at the harvestable stage, either are immobile on or under the seabed of the continental shelf of Canada or are unable to move except in constant physical contact with the seabed or the subsoil of the continental shelf of Canada.

Plateau continental

Plateau continental du Canada

17 (1) Le plateau continental du Canada est constitué des fonds marins et de leur sous-sol — y compris ceux de la zone économique exclusive — qui s'étendent, au-delà de la mer territoriale, sur tout le prolongement naturel du territoire terrestre du Canada :

a) soit jusqu'au rebord externe de la marge continentale — la limite la plus éloignée que permet le droit international étant à retenir —, c'est-à-dire les fonds marins correspondant au plateau, au talus et au glacis, ainsi que leur sous-sol, qui constituent le prolongement immergé de la masse terrestre du Canada, à l'exclusion, toutefois, des grands fonds des océans, de leurs dorsales océaniques et de leur sous-sol;

b) soit jusqu'à 200 milles marins de la ligne de base de la mer territoriale, là où ce rebord se trouve à une distance inférieure;

c) soit, pour toute partie du plateau continental ayant fait l'objet d'une liste de coordonnées géographiques de points établie sous le régime du sous-alinéa 25a)(iii), jusqu'à la ligne constituée des géodésiques reliant ces points.

Précision

(2) Il est entendu que l'absence de règlement d'application du sous-alinéa 25a)(iv) n'a pas pour effet de restreindre la portée des droits que peut exercer le Canada au titre des alinéas (1)a) et b).

1996, ch. 31, art. 17; 2015, ch. 3, art. 137(A).

Droits souverains du Canada

18 Les droits souverains du Canada sur son plateau continental s'étendent à l'exploration de celui-ci et à l'exploitation de ses ressources minérales et autres ressources naturelles non biologiques, ainsi que des organismes vivants qui appartiennent aux espèces sédentaires, c'est-à-dire les organismes qui, au stade où ils peuvent être pêchés, sont soit immobiles sur le fond ou au-dessous du fond, soit incapables de se déplacer autrement qu'en restant constamment en contact avec le fond ou le sous-sol.

Rights of Her Majesty

19 (1) For greater certainty, any rights of Canada in the continental shelf of Canada are vested in Her Majesty in right of Canada.

Saving

(2) Nothing in this section abrogates or derogates from any legal right or interest held before February 4, 1991.

Application of federal laws — continental shelf installations

20 (1) Subject to any regulations made pursuant to paragraph 26(1)(j) or (k), federal laws apply

(a) on or under any marine installation or structure from the time it is attached or anchored to the continental shelf of Canada in connection with the exploration of that shelf or the exploitation of its mineral or other non-living resources until the marine installation or structure is removed from the waters above the continental shelf of Canada;

(b) on or under any artificial island constructed, erected or placed on the continental shelf of Canada; and

(c) within such safety zone surrounding any marine installation or structure or artificial island referred to in paragraph (a) or (b) as is determined by or pursuant to the regulations.

Application of provincial law

21 (1) Subject to this section and to any other Act of Parliament, the laws of a province apply to the same extent as federal laws apply pursuant to section 20 in any area of the sea
